16 / 1 / 2009

This week Tashkent hosted the scientific and practical conference "Contemporary forms and methods of counteracting terrorism financing", the report by Uzbekistan National News Agency website has said.

The Higher study courses at the Office of the Prosecutor General of the Republic of Uzbekistan alongside with the Central Bank of Uzbekistan, the International Center for Political Violence and Terrorism Research of the S. Rajaratnam School of International Studies of the Republic of Singapore are reported to have organized the conference.

The attendees of the Higher study courses at the Office of the Prosecutor General of Uzbekistan, the staff members of the Interior Ministry, National Security Service and banking establishments of Uzbekistan participated at the conference.

The delegates to the event are reported to have said that terrorism stood as a global problem and struggle against it was one of the important objectives of an international scale.

Uzbekistan adopted a number of normative and legal documents on combating terror which stipulate this phenomenon as the gravest kind of transnational organized crime. Such documents provide for mechanisms and measures aimed at averting and combating any manifestations of terror.

The special subdivisions for combating terror have so far been established and are efficiently operating at the law-enforcement agencies of Uzbekistan, while the Uzbek national parliament had ratified a number of international conventions on the struggle against terrorism financing.

The delegates to conference are also reported to have paid a particular attention to the history of emerging terror, activities of modern terrorist groups, as well as to bettering international legal mechanisms to efficiently combat terrorism financing.
